By ALBERT W. FOX.

Peace in Nicaragua and the disband-ing of the rival armies are based on the ige of the United States governmen sure a fair election to the Nicara guan people next year, according to the report which Henry L. Stimson to President Coolidge yesterday.

Mr. Stimson spent the morning in conference with the President, Secretary of State Kellogg and Undersecretary Olds. Later, he discussed his raguan mission with the newspaper idents and freely answered correspondents and freely answered questions on various phases of the delicate problem which he appears successfully to have coped with. He will make a formal detailed report to President Coolidge in the near future.

The outstanding features of Mr. Stimson's verbal report are that the Nicaraguan revolution is effectively snded and likely to remain snuffed out until the 1928 elections in view of the surrender by both armies of 9,500 rilles, 296 machine guns and nearly 6,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

It develops that a well-timed warning lelivered by Mr. Stimson to Gen. Moncada brought about the collapse of the revolution which had been applied losing ground but was being continued because Moncada could not surrender without losing prestige with continued because Moncada could not surrender without losing prestige with his own fighting forces and his own followers. The deadlock between the Diaz conservatives and the Sacasa liberals had resulted from the refusal of the liberals to stop fighting unless Diaz gave up the presidency pending next year's election. This Diaz declined to do and Sacasa refused to listen to my compromise. Mr. Stimson, however, was quick to Mr. Stimson, however, was quick to perceive that the revolution was really being kept alive by Moncada and his men in the field, rather than by Sacasa, who was playing politics with no risk to himself and was consequently adverse to giving up the fight while there remained any forlorn hope of his ambition being fulfilled. Accordingly, Mr. Stimson established contact with Moncada and found that the latter also insisted upon the relinquishment of the presidency by Dlaz.

Threat of Marines Made.

However, when Mr. Stimson warned Moncada that if he did not disband his army, American Marines would disband them, Moncada was ready to accept this warning as sufficient reason for laying down his arms without loss of prestige to himself or his followers. He wanted Mr. Stimson to put the statement in writing so he could acquaint his troops with the true reason for his surrender and this was therefore done. The point was that Moncada required some such reason to enable him to bring the needless strife to an end and Mr. Stimson saw the practical advantage to all sides of such a step even though it obviously invited the criticism that the United States had employed a threat to bring about peace.

it will be regarded by our people as a sacred trust.

"I doubt if the people of this country have appreciated the bitterness of the strife and the horrors of the conditions which have existed during the revolution in Nicaragua.

"Not only has the actual fighting been so fierce that in many battles the losses of the combatants, in proportion to their numbers, have been as high as the losses in the great war, but the conduct of the warfare has been brutal beyond expression.

All Prisoners Were Killed.

"When I reached Nicaragua I found that no prisoners were being taken by either side. The wounded when cap-tured were killed, and even when not espitured most of them fell victims to the hardships of the climate and the jurgle in which the fighting took place.

"Cases were brought to my attention where noncombatants, men, women and children, were butchered in cold blood, and also cases where such noncombatants were tortured and mutilated. Furthermore, the country was rapidly drifting into anarchy and was becoming fulled with armed men, who had formerly been in one army or the other and who were choosing the easier source of becoming bandits.
"This situation is now practically entrely ended."

until the question of the eligibility of the wife of a Government employe to serve is decided, according to the proceedings yesterday before Justice William Hitz in criminal court, where Robert Williams, colored, is on trial for the alleged murder of Maj. Gaines, also colored.

As a result of objection by Attorney James A. O'Shea, of counsel for Williams, Mrs. Lillie Green, wife of Deputy Marshal Joseph Green, was excused from service. The question of her eligibility is expected to be determined this week by Justice Hoehling.

As a result of the exercise of the feminine perogative of changing her mind, Miss Fannie M. Haar was excused by Justice Hitz because of her conscientious scruples against capital punishment. About ten days ago Miss Haar was a member of the jury which returned a verdiet of murder in the first degree against Malcomb Howard, colored, charged with the murder of a colored woman. Mrs. Green sless was a member of that jury. Abner Slegal, counsel for Howard, demanded a new trial on the ground that because Mrs. Green was the wife of a Government employe she was ineligible.

Upon being questioned in the Williams case Miss Haar surprised Assistant District Attorney George D. Horning, jr., by announcing that she preferred not to sit in cases which may result in a verdict carrying the death penalty because of her conscientious scruples against capital punishment.

Williams, who was employed for 20 years as a messenger in the United States Supreme Court, is alleged to have shot Gaines at 1450 P street north-west on March 11 following an argument at a poker game.

But the Italian aviator predicted that he would be in Casdelo Branco, Porto, the Azores, within twelve hours, where, according to Capt. Nocha, the Portuguese Consul at St. John's .who spent yesterday here with De Pinedo, the inhabitants plan a rousing reception for the filer.

Be left at 4:28 o'clock, local time, or 1:56 Eastern standard time.

De Pinedo arrived here last week by easy stages from Montreal, after completing his North American tour, which was marred by the destruction of the original Santa Maria by fire by a careless cigarette smoker in Arizona.

A second plane was rushed from Rome to New York, and the intrepid filer resumed his way.

Ordinarily he had hoped to reach Rome by May 24, but his revised schedule calls for the end of the tour in two days.

In making preparations for the hop to the Azores, De Pinedo jettisoned his radio and other excess equipment, devoting all available surplus weight power to fuel. Spare parts and other things generally regarded as necessary were sacrificed to the necessity for "traveling light."

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, yesterday opened a drive against motorists who dart around corners and speed across intersections. He let it be known that after long study he considers this a major problem in the District's traffic difficulties.

On the front page of the daily bulletin of the metropolitan police department, Maj. Hesse caused to be printed in bold-faced type the following instruction to all members of the force:

"Enforce strictly the regulation relative to right of way. GLOWING TRIBUTES PAID

Paris, May 23 (By A. P.).—Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, making his first flight in oratory on this side of the Atlantic, today modestly ignored his own triumph to express profound regret for the loss of Capts. Nungesser' and Coli, "who undertook something far greater than the flight from New York to Paris."

His little speech, just three sentences, was made when the Aero Club gave him its great gold medal and announced that Mme. Deutsch de la Meurthe, widow of the former president of the club, had sent a check for 150,000 francs (about $6.000) to the club with instructions that a cup be presented to him. Mme. de is Meurthe also sent a check for 100,000 francs each for Capt. Nungesser's mother and Capt. Coll's family.

When the medal was presented to the shy young American, he said:

"Friends, I am not going to try to tell you how impossible it is for me to express my feelings. The only thing I can say is how deeply all the United States felt the loss of your two great aviators who undertook something far greater than the flight from New York to Paris."

The crowd of notables that packed the Aero Club's salons cheered Capt. Lindbergh's modest effort of three sentences and when the storm had died down, he added another sentence: "We still hope that Nungesser and Coll will be found in some deserted post in Canada." association.

He explained that his company is association.

He explained that his company is attempting to sound out the public on the subject of one-man cars, which he declares should be called "safety-cars," in order that they can put into general use the de luxe cars of that type which are at present operating on the Wisconsin avenue line. He pointed out that by "one-man car" he did not mean the obsolete type on the Eleventh street line, which his company will soon do away with.

tences and when the storm had died down, he added another sentence: "We still hope that Nungesser and Coll will be found in some deserted post in Canada."

The transstlantic filer stood immediately under a portrait of Wilbur Wright and a photograph of the famous French war ace, Capt. George Guynemer. As quickly as his face had flushed during the encomiums directed at him. his deepest flush was when the president of the Aero Club presented the gold medal, saying: "Lindbergh, you have set back the limits of the impossible."

Minister of War Painleve seemed to find difficulty in soaring to higher praise of the American filer, but he roused the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm when he exclaimed: "Lindbergh, you have added to the sum of human heroism."

Minister of Labor Fallieres, son of a former president of the republic, told Capt. Lindbergh that there were two things which appealed to the French people. "These are that you are only 25 years old," he said, "and that you are a son of the United States, a country of generous impulses, a country of application and industry. One can extend the people."

They also recommended a regulation prohibiting commercial vehicles parking in front of residential property except for the purpose of loading and unloading. The association adopted the resolutions.

MUSEUM HARMONY NEEDED, SAYS ABBOT

Maj. Carey H. Brown, of the National Park and Planning Commission, outlined plans for the playground and park system in the District of Columbia at the final meeting for the season of the Randle Highlands Citizens Association, held in the Fountain Memorial Church last night.

The commission hopes to put playgrounds within a half mile of everychild in the District, and a thorough study of the situation is being made, he stated. He also said that the Fort Dupont Park from the Anacostia River to Alabama avenue and north of Massa-Need for greater cooperation between the museums of this country was stressed by Dr. C. G. Abbot, acting secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, in an address at the opening session of the annual convention of the American Association of Museums at the Smithsonian Institution yesterday.

is abundant opportunity for the development of helpful relations between the 100 museums in this country. There is need for further study of the responsibilities for unique material on the part of the National Museum, which desires to develop collections of national importance, and of the many local institutions which may not be in a position to undertake expensive scientific investigations, he asserted.

Dr. Abbot declared this bears directly upon the question as to whether new specimens are to be lodged in this city or scattered, as at present.

Millions of school children, besides large numbers of their elders, find among the exhibits and collections at the National Museum much that constitutes their most impressive recollection of Washington and many things which help to raise their mental and material condition in life, he said. Representatives of museums of art, science and history throughout the country are in attendance at the convention, which will continue through tomorrow. New Urges Women to Join Principles.

Women were told not to be "idealistic" in politics by Postmaster General New, speaking before the Political Study Club at its breakfast at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. Politica is a very practical business, he said. He urged the women to align themselves with one of the political parties and to study the principles of each before acting. They should not permit themselves to be swayed by "good talkers," he said. He deplored the primary system, asserting that just as the people choose legislators to make their laws they should let the parties select their nominees for public office.

Except for the lucky few who caught a glimpse of him on the night of his arrival at Le Bourget, and those who have waited for hours in front of the gates of the American Embassy, few have had a chance to see him.

Hundreds of midinettes, little girls who work in the Paris dress shops, held patient vigil in front of Elysee Palace this noon for a chance to cheer him. But he whizzed past so rapidly in a car with Ambassador Herrick that only a few of the girls caught a glimpse of him.

Even the meticulous Premier Poincare, chief of the government, showed enthusiasm in welcoming Capt. Lindbergh this afternoon, with the finance minister leaping forward, evidently intending to kiss the pilot, when Lindbergh stuck out his hand and shook hands.

bergh stuck out his hand and shook hands.

For the first time in his life Capt. Lindbergh drank champagne this afternoon and it was to his mother's fleath that he did it. It happened at the French Aero Club reception for the Yankee monarch of the skies, with the greatest French aces and figures of the political world standing around gaping with admiration for the fair-haired boy of 25.

Even the greatest of them were deeply touched by Capt. Lindbergh's decision to appear for his first public reception at their historic clubhouse at Rue Francois I, whose walls are lined with the names of French birdmen, dead and alive, who made aviation history. So they made it a big event.

Cabinet Members Laud Him.

"Let us drink to the happlest woman in America—the mother of this boy."

A bewigged, silken-clad lackey, bow- ung low, tendered Capt. Lindbergh a slender stemmed glass, its delicate cup brimming with the bubbling juice. The brob of guests roared their approval, trushed to the buffet and snatched glasses to quench thirsts generated in the packed hall.

At least two of the nickname have brought protests from Lind-bergh's friends—"Flyin' Fool" and "Lucky." They resent the term "fool," although those who dubbed the flier that did not mean it in the sense it has been taken. And they also resent the suggestion that Lindbergh has been lucky.

Whitehouse, counselor of the embassy, led him to the sanctuary of the old Bourbon Palace, where the grizzled gentleman from Lorraine was working out the financial salvation of France.

Looking up from his papers to spy the entry of the boy his country has taken to its heart, Premier Poincare cast aside some of his famous reserve and told him in French—although he speaks a little English—what a wonderful lad he is and what a great thing "Belle exploit" he had accomplished. Lindbergh will hop off Saturday aboard the Spirit of St. Louis for Brussels and then probably London, by air; maybe Stockholm, and perhaps Berlin and Vienna.

Tomorrow Capt. Lindbergh probably will be feeling better, as the Paris branch of a Bond street tailor who took his measurements this morning promised delivery of a sack suit, tuxedo and tail coat for tomorrow. An exclusive shirtmaker also pledged his word to deliver a choice array of haberdashery, flowered silk shirts and collars to match, and a flock of crepe de chine underwear thoughtfully picked out by the aviator, as well as plenty of scarfs, and even a pair of white spats.

"We are not showmen, we didn't undertake the flight with that in mind," Capt. Lindbergh explained, telling why he is in no rush to beat it back to America to fulfill the offers that have been made to him.

"This is no time to talk about any flight to Hawaii and Australia—that is not under consideration at all," he continued, commenting on statements which were cabled here as to his plans.

Then the tailors, haberdashers and bootmakers flocked in for measurements.

Rostand Verses to Lindbergh

Paris, May 23 (By A. F.).—A half-hour after Capt, Charles A. Lindbergh had landed on the Le Bourget flying field Saturday night, Maurice Rostand, celebrated French poet, wrote a poem to the triumphant aviator.

The poem which was written on the flying field, is entitled "A Lindbergh," ("To Lindbergh") and bears under the title the quotation of Alan Seeger's "J'ai un rendezvous avec le mort.'

Arrived With 27 Cents.

The hero's financial worries were solved today when he cashed a $1,000 check, because he arrived in Paris with 27 cents in American money in his pockets, and that was all. Mine. Duetache de la Meurthe, widow of the former president of the French Aero Club, announced that she was giving him 180,000 france (about $6,000) and plenty of other pledges for prizes, but no cash was forthcoming until he cashed the check, which the ambassador indorsed.

Gopt. Lindbergh said he was not much interested in seeing the Montmartre or the Latin quarter, or Paris by night, or any of the big revues like the Moulin Rouge and the Folies Bergeres.

"I would rather look the town over by myself," he said. "I usually go to bed pretty early."

Nor did he show interest in visiting Maxims, where Barman Joseph invented the Lindbergh cocktail in his honor.

And then he was asked how it feit to be klased on both cheeks, President Doumergue having given him this customary French accolade in presenting him with the Legion of Honor.

"That's another one," said Lindbergh. He lightheartedly parried casual questions that touched on sundry subjects, but when anything was asked about his plane or his flight, or something germane to aviation his smile would pass, his slim body would bend over a little nearer to the man who happened to be addressing him and a stream of words would flow from him in precise sentences, finely phrased.

He seemed never to weary of talking about his earth induction compass, to which he attributed the fact that all the way through darkness and storms over land and sea his plane stayed steadily on its course and on the time schedule he had planned before leaving New York.

ST. LOUISANS SUGGEST DISPLAY OF MAGHINE

Would Rest With Langley and Wright Efforts, NC-4 and Chicago.

The Spirit of St. Louis, the stanch monoplane that carried Capt. Charles Lindbergh from New York to Paris without a stop, eventually may join the greatest array of historic planes in the world—the collection in the Smithsonian Institution here.

A cablegram asking that the plane be turned over to the Smithsonian Institution was sent to Capt. Lindbergh yesterday. It was signed by Dr. Charles G. Abbott, acting secretary of the institution, who conceived the idea while Lindberg was still over the Atlantic.

From any standpoint, scientific, historical or patriotic, there could be no more appropriate place for the Spirit of St. Louis than the aircraft section of the famous institution in the Mall. For English Instruction more appropriate place for the Spirit of St. Louis than the aircraft section of the famous institution in the Mail. Here are the great-granddaddy and the granddaddy of all flying machines—those built in 1896 and in 1903 hy Prof. Samuel Pierpont Langley. Here also are the NC-4, the first American plane to cross the Atlantic; the Army plane in which McCready and Kelly made the first nonstop transcontinental flight; the Chicago, flagship of the round-the-world squadron; the ancient Wright craft, first plane ever owned by the Army; the flagship of the Alaskan squadron, the plane used on the Western front by Col. William Mitchell and several other famous war planes, and the Berliner helicopter.

Langley's Plane Flew 3.000 Feet.

Langley's Plane Flew 3,000 Feet.

The plane which Prof. Langley built in 1896 and which was equipped with a steam engine was catapulied over the Potomac River that year and flew 3,000 feet. However, it carried no pilot.

The 1903 plane carrying a pilot started off, but quickly settled in the water. The derisive laughter that arose after this disaster is said to have broken poor old Langley's heart and to have led to his death.

This same plane, however, was taken aloft at Hammondsport, N. Y., in 1915 by Glenn H. Curtis, a fact which is pointed to by Langley's friends as proof that the plane was the first ever built "capable" of flying under its own power and carrying a man.

built "capable" of flying under its own power and carrying a man.

The first plane actually to fly with a man aboard was the one built by the Wright brothers, who received much help and advice from Prof. Langley. The Wright brothers achieved this feat in 1903, several months after Langley's plane had fallen into the Potomac.

Held First Real Plane. Held First Real Plane.

The placard under Langley's 1903 plane says that the strange-looking machine was, in the opinion of many most competent to judge, "the first heavier-than-air craft capable of sustained free flight under its own power carrying a man." It points out that the Langley plane antedated the plane of the Wright brothers.

When the Wright brothers were given the coveted Langley medal by the Smithsonian Institution in 1909, according to Smithsonian Officials they praised Prof. Langley lavishly, saying that he had put them "on the right track."

that he had put them "on the right track."

In 1914 the Wright brothers sued Glenn H. Curtiss on the ground that he had infringed on several of their patents. Curtiss retaliated by saying they had borrowed most of their ideas from Langley.

Out of this quarrel, according to Smithsonian officials, grew the decision of the Wright brothers to change their mind about giving their first plane to the Smithsonian Institution, and to give it instead to the British Museum. Prof. Langley had been secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

On this basis, Lindbergh broke the nonstop distance record established last October by French aviators, Rignot and Costes, on a flight from Paris to Persia. They covered 3,313 miles or 5,396 kilometers.

Whether any effective agreement can be made without them is a question about which leaders of the industry are not overoptimistic. Doubt over the outlook was expressed in a preliminary report sent to yesterday's conference by Ray M. Collins, of Tulss, recently chosen as an umpire to work out a program for curtailment of a flow of oil in Southwestern fields, which is looked upon by the industry as amounting to serious overproduction.

Recommended!

The best recommendation any girl carries into the business world is a youthful, attractive appearance like that of Miss Mabel Olson, 323 President Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. She says: "I couldn't do without the delightfully soft, soothing Black and White Cold Cream, which ooths out the tired lines from my skin at the end of the day's work and makes it feel and look fresh and glowing. It doesn't give wrin and glowing. It doesn't give wrin-kles and crow's feet a chance to form, and it keeps my skin velvety and blemish-free."

You, too, will appreciate the won-derful way Black and White Cold Cream nourishes the glands and tis-sues and seems to awaken the skin-to new activity, keeping it always youthfully lovely. Over 80,000 dealers everywhere recommend and sell the generous 80c and 25c jars of this dainty cream.

This announcement brought a protest last night from Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Antisaloon League, who asserted that the present supply of medicinal whisky was adequate and that Assistant Secretary Andrews had not the authority to take this action.

"The members of the executive committee of the Antisaloon League were unanimous at their recent meeting against making more medicinal whisky now," said Mr. Wheeler, "Ualess the amount used is greatly increased there is enough on hand for at least six years. (By the Associated Press.)
President Coolidge may review the United States fleet from the yacht Mayflower at Hampton Roads, Va., about June 4, it was announced yesterday at the Navy Department. The fleet, consisting of more than 100 vessels, will leave Newport, R. I., Saturday and arrive off Hampton Roads June 1. The presidential review is expected to take place just before the battleships and scouting fleets break up and leave for their regular stations. The review will give Mr. Coolidge his first sight of the fleet.

The armaments conference has been called for June 20, and it is the hope of Mr. Coolidge that it will outline a program for curtailing construction of the lighter vessels.

Details have not been arranged for the President's trip, but it is believed he will go to Norfolk from here by train and there board the Mayflower, which probably will be sent down in advance.

Steubenville, Ohio, May 23 (By A. P.). The home of James Pliney, Ohio prohibition law enforcement agent, at Dillonvale, was dynamited early today. Pliney, his wife and three children, and two other occupants of the structure, were unhurt.

The dynamite, believed by authorities to have been placed by persons who sought Pliney's life because of his drylaw activities, was tamped into the rear foundation of the house. When it exploded it ripped out the entire rear part of the structure and shattered windows within a radius of two blocks.

ARGUMENTS BEGUN

IN FORD TAX APPEALS Opinion of Government's Experts Assailed as Having Little Value.

(By the Associated Press.)

Assailing the opinions of economic experts who testified for the Government in the $30,000,000 Ford tax cass as having very little value and those of investment banker witnesses as having only slightly more, counsel for the taxpayers yesterday urged that the opinions of men in the automobile industry be given "a great deal" of weight in consideration of the value of stock in the Ford Motor Co.

The automobile men supported the taxpayers' contention that a valuation of $9.498.34 per share for stock in the company, on March 1, 1913, was not excessive. The government is seeking to collect approximately $30,000,000 in back taxes from the petitioners, who include Senator Couzens, of Michigan, who were formerly stockholders in the Ford Motor Co.

One of the greatest assets of the company, counsel for the petitioners asserted, was the basic principle discovered by Ford in 1908 and known only to his company, that reduction of prices was followed by increased sale and production. The strength of the board of directors, which included Senator Couzens and Horace E. and John F. Dodge, was urged as another factor in argument to show that the company was beyond an experimental stage in 1913 and was an established concern.

THERE was a time—not so long ago—when the automobile was the dividing line between those who "belonged" and those who didn't. Of course, no such distinction will ever be made regarding oil heat—but the fact remains that the most progressive people in every walk of life now regard automatic heat as a necessity.

If you've never lived in an oil-heated home, you have no idea what it means. But once you've tasted the joys of this modernized heat you could no more give it up than you could give up your automobile. In fact, 99 out of 100 Nokol owners say they wouldn't go back to old-fashioned heating methods under any circumstances.

Let Nokol do the work

Think what it means to turn over all your heating problems to a little thermostat that does all the worrying for you, looks after the furnace while you're enjoying those last precious moments of sleep; keeps your house always at the temperature you like best, with never more than 2° variation; does away with the drudgery of the coal shovel, with ashes, soot, dust and dirt; in short, takes every thought of the furnace off your mind and leaves you and all your family free to revel in luxurious comfort all winter long. That's Nokol automatic oil heat.

burners of today were put on the market. But there is "something new" about the degree of perfection attained by the latest model—the new silent Nokol.

A new day in oil heat

Here is a burner that revises all previous conceptions of oil heat—a burner that not only eliminates the usual oil-burning noise, heretofore the main objection to oil heat, but attains a new standard of performance and efficiency. Its amazingly efficient method of combustion does away with soot, carbon and dirt, with smell of oil, with wasteful operation. It gives the lowest cost, full automatic oil heat known; a cost about the same as hard coal—usually less.

PERMANENT COMMITTEE MAY BE OPENED TO U.S.

Resolutions Are Unanimously Adopted, Soviet Abstaining on Some Ballots.

Geneva, May 23 (By A. signal success.

The Soviet delegation adhered to its promise to abstain from voting on matters which it felt were contrary to communist doctrine, and thus permitted the unanimous acceptance of all resolutions presented today before the sessions.

Valerian Obelinsky Ossinsky, the Soviet delegate, at the last moment took a shot at the League of Nations, which had invited the Russians to the conference, declaring that the Soviet representatives were unable to subscribe to the program for future league economic activities because they still considered the league "an instrument of capitalism and a cloak of imperialist nations for crushing weaker nations."

Holds to Its Principles. M. Ossinsky declared that the adherence of the Soviet delegates to the resolution, approved by the conference, that nations should collaborate economically irrespective of their economic systems, did not imply that the Soviet renounced any of its fundamental principles. aystems, did not imply that the Soviet renounced any of its fundamental principles.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, May 23.—With the deatl oday in Philadelphia of Henry Ed wards Huntington, multimillionaire patron of art and letters at the age of 77 there came to light what is said to be the largest monetary contribution ever made; a trust fund of $8,000,000 to be used exclusively for research in American and English history.

That Huntington, the railroad magnate had adopted a plan to give to the public his famous building at San Marino, Calif., housing a collection of paintings, books and manuscripts. first was learned last February when Dr. Max Ferrand, formerly professor of history at Yale, resigned as head of the commonwealth fund to direct converting the collection. It was said at the time that the great library with all its resources would become "A free research laboratory for the advancement of learning."

Trustees are Named.

study of English and American sources was announced only today, a few hours after his death, by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, his confidential adviser for the last-lifteen years.

The trustees of the fund, said Rosenberg, are Archer M. Huntington, nephew of the deceased; George F. Patton, Henry M. Robinson, Dr. Robert A. Millikan and himself. The income from the $8,000,000 will be used to create fellowships for scholars engaged in historical research, for research work by the staff of the Huntington Library and for publication of research findings.

Although of a family that had won fame and fortune in railroads, and born February 27, 1850, in the railroad city of Oneonta, N. Y., Mr. Huntington did not incline toward railroading when he was ready to enter business. He went into the hardware business in that city when a mere boy, and next engaged in the lumber and logging business at St. Albans, W. Va. It was here that his uncle first took notice of the young man's ability and named him as superintendent of construction of the Huntington line, then being constructed from Louisville to New Orleans. The railroad became known as the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern. Later Henry Edwards Huntington became superintendent and receiver of the road.

In 1886 he became vice president and general manager of the Kentucky Central Railway, and in the next few years held the posts of vice president and general manager of the Elizabethtown. #### NICARAGUA-MEXICO NEXT.

All of the revolutionary and guerrilla forces in Nicaragua have delivered up their arms, according to Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, who reported personally to President Coolidge yesterday the result of his errand to Nicaragua. Even the band that recently clashed with American Marines, resulting in the death of Capt. Buchanan, has given up its arms. It is not expected, therefore, that there will be further dis-

Peace in Nicaragua followed the severe defeat of the revolutionists and the notice served by Mr. Stimson that if they did not deliver up their arms they would be disarmed by the American Marines. At the same time Mr. Stimson gave the promise of President Coolidge that the United States would supervise the Nicaraguan presidential election in 1928. The futility of standing out against the American forces and the assurance of fair elections enabled Gen. Moncada to abandon the field without admitting that he had been defeated. He seems to have been anxious to save his face, to which the United States has no objection whatever. But he seems also to have been a brave fighter, something that can not be said of the rebel leader, Sacasa, who remained safely in his Puerto Cabezas retreat, virtually protected by Admiral Latimer.

Sacasa, it appears, was more or less of a figurehead. Behind him were strong and sinister figures, Mexican and Nicaraguan, who conspired with Mexican money and arms to destroy the liberty of Nicaragua. The revolutionists admitted that they had obtained $1,000,000 from Mexican sources, but the American authorities have reason to believe that the total was nearer $4,000,000.

This money was robbed, of course, from the Mexican people, and all of it has been sunk in the harebrained attempt to set up communism in Nicaragua. The squandering of this money accounts in part for the shortage in Calles' treasury, where, on May 6, only 18,000 pesos reained with which to pay the army. Mexican private soldiers are without pay. They will not serve long unless paid. In the meantime the Mexican states of Jalisco, Guanajuato, Michoacan, Zacatecas, Durango, Morelos and San Luis Potosi are honeycombed with revolutionists who are gathering strength daily.

An era of frightful disorder and bloodshed is impending in Mexico. The madness of the present regime must run its course until the people overthrow it. The government's lack of the sinews of war, which is becoming so manifest, will powerfully aid the people to throw off the Calles incubus by winning the army over to the side where its sympathies really lie. Rumors are circulated to the effect that a desperate effort is being made by the Calles government to borrow money in the United States; but the American who would risk money on the permanence of the Calles regime is blind indeed.

The world cherishes its delusions so mucl that their destruction is seldom a happy event. There will, therefore, be no cheering over the announcement that legal judgment has established the fact that Lloyd's has no more per sonality than the New York Stock Exchange and is, in fact, a similar body, created merely to govern its members.

The famous organization, which takes its name from the coffee house that served as its first meeting place, has long been associated with the insurance world. The prevalent opinion has been that Lloyd's would take risks that other companies scorned. It was to Lloyd's that men appealed when they wanted protection against some of the freakish happenings of the world, and as a rule it was found that Lloyd's was willing to write the policy for a suitable premium.

The belief that Lloyd's and not its members performed this service must have been general, for now comes the official announcement that much litigation has resulted from this erroneous conception. Persons dissatisfied with the rewards of their policies have sued Lloyd's redress there, but only with the member of Lloyd's who guaranteed the protection. The exact distinction has been made the subject of a report by a special master so that there might be no more confusion.

The law destroys one of the pleasant fictions, for the traditions that surround Lloyd's can not be passed on to the prosaic and everyday individuals who are the business descend ants of the little group which met long ago at the corner of Abchurch lane and Lombard street, City of London, to write insurance on

What will happen when he returns to his native land? May the President decorate him with the Medal of Honor or will it be necessary to await the action of Congress? Surely Capt. Lindbergh is entitled to as much consideration from his own people as the French nation has ccorded to him. And if any one was ever de serving of the "thanks of Congress," carrying with it, as such an honor does, the right of the floor of the House and the Senate, it is due to the youthful flier who dashed over the Atlantic, With the opening of the next session we may expect a race between the Missouri and Minnesota delegations for the honor of being the first to propose that the "thanks of Congress he, and hereby are, extended to Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, first to span the ocean in a nonstop flight from New York to Paris."

"It's just one joy after another," he said, referring to the Legion of Honor, "and this is one of the greatest."

The superlative reward will be the presentation to him of the Congressional Medal of Honor, together with the thanks of Congress

THE UNIVERSAL CURE.

Important and shie as is the membership of the American Medical Association, the convention of which has just been brought to a close, it must be remembered that elsewhere in the world other physicians whose nationality precludes their membership in the American body are making equally important and farreaching discoveries. Dr. De Fennis, for instance, a Parisian whose practice has been mostly in Indo-China and other French colonies, is authority for the statement that the fear of disease, microbes and other ills and bugaboos is man's worst malady. He considers the malady so important that he has given it a name-hyperbygienitis. In support of the assertion he points to the people to whom he has been ministering, who, he says, are in such a state of terror, worrying over ailments that did not seem dangerous until science began to teach their terrors that they refuse to eat strawberries, fish, oysters and other foods or to drink wine; because they have been warned of possible infection.

Then along comes Dr. Peter Fowler, an English physician, who recently told the British Medical Association that there is no disease for which golf is not a remedy. He claims that he has seen men with the worst type of valvular diseases of the heart kept alive by their interest in the game, and by the fresh air into which golf takes them. Only the very young and the very old, according to Dr. Fowler, are injured by too large a dose of athletics-to every one else, sports, particularly golf, is both tonic and cure.

An analysis of the two statements can bring but one conclusion, namely, the chances are that you are not sick, and whether you are or not, golf can effect the cure. Tables are reversed; the cure no longer is worse than the ailment. How comforting it all is!

JAZZ MARRIAGES.

Yet another individual, this time an English magistrate, has come forth with a solutionof the hasty marriage problem. Declaring that the "jazz age has jazzed up marriage, this gentleman urges the establishment throughout Great Britain of advisory bureaus for engaged couples. Similar premarriage bureaus, where suggestions and advice are handed out gratuitously, have been operated successfully in Germany, he says, and if German youth can be guided through the grand passion to successful, happy and lasting marriage, English lovers also could be led to the ideal nuptial state.

The suggestion follows closely the enact ment by the California Legislature of a bill described during the session as designed to prevent "gin marriages." Through it the State has closed the door to elopers and others who would marry in haste by requiring couples to give three days' notice of their intentions before they can obtain the necessary license. Of the two suggestions, that of the English justice seems to be the more wise, although both attempt to control an effect rather than its cause. Hasty marriages, while usually the result of a passing whim or fancy, are not that easy to control. The trouble lies not so much in the contracting parties as they are at the moment, but in their antecedents, their training and their home life. Making marriage more difficult undoubtedly will serve as a de terrent, but to correct the condition requires an attack on its fundamental causes. In most ways the world has progressed though in some ways the progression has been evil. In the old days hasty marriage was not a problem, and it would be fortunate if in this espect the clock could be turned backward. Making mandatory a three-day notice of intention to wed will not steady the foolish, nor will the establishment of premarriage advice bureaus insure that the advice will "take."

LAWN TENNIS, OR TENNIS, WHICH?

The old dispute as to the proper nomenclature of the two widely different games, now officially known as tennis and lawn tennis respectively, has at length come to a head in England, with a great digging up of old documents and records by the champions of the former and a wondrous display of casuistry as well as of erudition on both sides. There was not much room for any parading of history by the advocates of lawn tennis, for it is a comparatively modern invention, having been established in the seventies of the last stury by Maj. Winkfield, who gave it the bastard Greek name of sphairistike. Indeed, the appellation of lawn tennis, which it soon took on, was applied to it at first as a sort of term of contempt; suggesting a lady-like game of the caliber of croquet or battledore and shuttlecock. In fact, in those early days, it was sometimes, more derisively still deals, nated "pat-ball," the implication being that it was a pastime suited to lackadaisical and languishing girls and effeminate young men How far the game has belied these aspersions on its character, and to what extent it has developed, any one who has seen Tilden in action, with his cannon-ball service and his severe and sizzling cross-court returns, can abundantly testify. And he is only one of many-men and women-who have turned sphairistike into an extremely strenuous game

From the welter of precedents that have been quoted, it would appear that the word tennis is plainly a generic one, applicable equally to the game as played in the open air or against the walls of "close" courts. I' is alluded to by Chaucer, who died in 1400, some 135 years earlier than the setting-up of the first roofed-in close court in England, and was probably of great antiquity even in his time. It is also contended that it is the openair game that Elizabethan and Jacobean audiences would have had in mind, as they listened to the various references to tennis that occur in Shakespeare's plays. It was certainly on an open court that Giustiniani, the Venetian ambassador, saw Henry VIII performing in 1519, when he sent to the Selgnory the celebrated dispatch, in which he said that "it is the prettiest thing in the world to see him play, his fair skin glowing through his shirt of the finest texture," for the rest of the king's costume consisted of slippers and shorts, and a gentleman usher stood by with a coat of blue velvet to wrap him up in at the end of the game, lest he should catch cold. Such a precaution would have been scarcely necessary had the court been a close one, and we know that the oldest close roofed-in tennis court in Europe, namely, that at Hampton Court palace, did not have the roof put on until 1535.

As sphairistike, or lawn tennis, is now almost universally known simply as tennis, the suggestion has been made that that appellation should be allowed to stand, and that the other variant of the game, namely, that played against walls, with its tambour, grille, and dedans, should be called, for distinction, either "royal tennis" or "close tennis." The only objection to this arrangement is likely to come from the partisans of the latter, who, relying on the prescriptive right conferred by undisputed possession during 392 years, may not care to give up a tittle of their claim. They however, are but a small minority, and it seems ordained that usage, the final arbiter in all such matters, will eventually establish, as the appropriate name for the game played with racket and ball across a net, the one unqualified word-tennis.

Of all the boys of scout age in the District of Columbia-and there are 25,000 of themonly 4,200 are enrolled in the 120 troops. There are 3,000 more who would gladly join if they had the opportunity to do so. It is to meet this desire that a drive for funds was inaugurated last week, when the budget committee decided that $61,000 could be expended this year to the great benefit of the boys, the city and the country. The drive has met with generous response thus far. At the luncheon under the auspices of "Division B" at the Hotel Washington yes terday, when the colonels of the six regiments made their reports, $3,251 was reported to have been subscribed since the meeting on Saturday. Word also was received from Division A, to the effect that $5,325 had been added to the pledges secured by that division. which makes a total of $29,526 up to noon on Monday, with three days remaining in which to complete the budget requirements.

No movement among the boys of the world ever met with such universal support as has that which was started among the boys of Great Britain, by Gen. Baden Powell, more than fourteen years ago. It has spread into every land and enrolled among the membership are boys of every race and creed. Congress chartered the Boy Scouts of America in 1917. Yesterday in a letter to the committee in charge Gen. Summerall, chief of staff of the Army, expressed earnest approval of the movement, "on account of its strong influence in inculcating in our youth the important principles of loyalty, industry, altruism, patriotism and reverence.'

President Coolidge wrote some time ago: There has been no single movement in our Nation that has been of greater advantage to our national life than that represented by the Boy Scouts of America." Chief Justice Taft wrote: "I am very glad to give my sympathy and support to such a movement as this."

Every red-blooded American boy does want to be a scout, and the opportunity to help at least 3,000 more of them to join rests with the people of Washington today. Step up to the "captain's office" on Fourteenth street in the Wyatt Building, and put in a lick for the boys of Washington.

RELIEF TO STOCKHOLDERS.

It may be taken for granted that Ogden Mills, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, relected, in his article made public yesterday, what the Treasury will recommend when the question of tax reduction comes before Congress. The present revenue law, according to Mr. Mills, places the greatest burden upon the corporation stockholders, and they above allothers are, he thinks, entitled to relief. In support of this position two facts are cited. First, that reduction in rates, where surtaxes were concerned, brought an increase n money paid to the government, and, second, that the normal rates and exemptions already have reached a point where only 2,400,-000 persons are paying any direct income tax

Every class of taxpayer has benefited from reductions already made except the corporation stockholder, and this applies with equal force to the individual with only a few securities and the possessor of large and varied interests. The Treasury does not deny that it appears possible to lift the tax burden still further, but thinks that relief should be given those who not only have not shared in previous reductions, but have been forced to pay an increased toll toward the support of the government.

MERICANS enjoy many things, but moderation isn't one of them A When they demand economy they demand too much, and when they spend they spend too much. Among their present intemperances other white people who were the first is enjoyment of the two words "inferiority complex."

one of these days we may be able to do They apply the words with the feeling that those whom they fit should be crushed in spirit. They think an inferiority complex a source of shame and wretchedness to the hopeless victim.

This is seldom the case. The possessor of an inferiority complex ento be conceded that the old-fashioned joys it. If Mrs. Brown glows with joyous pride because she has been invited to play bridge at the Smiths', it is because she feels inferior to the Smiths. Much of her pleasure at the party will be derived from the fact that she is among her superiors.

Nearly all men enjoy being among their betters, but the opposite is not at all true. Consider, then, the man who has a superiority complex. A certain Wilhelm had one, you will remember. And in every community there is at least one who thinks himself the noblest work of God.

There is, doubtless, a certain pleasure in feeling superior to every body. Certain people can for long periods enjoy the society of children. But normal people desire a fellowship of equality. They get hored among inferiors.

INDIANS AND PROFANITY James Smith, an early Ohio plos who was captured by the Indians and held a prisoner among them for many years, tells, among other interesting things regarding their habits, that at least those among whom he was thrown frowned upon such profanity as was common among the traders and to come into close contact with the Indians, says the Dayton News. Smith says that one day when he was watching a chief clean his rifle the ammer repeatedly dropped and the Indian cursed it, using the English words that he had heard from the mouths of traders. Smith asked the chief if he understood the meaning of the words he had uttered, and he promptly answered that he did. Preseed to give the meaning of the expression, the Indian explained that he un derstood it to be a mere expletive. "No, no," said 'Smith: "you have called upon the Great Spirit to destroy the hammer of your gun as punishment

The chief was deeply interested at nce and remarked that in that case it was not only cheapening the Great pirit to call His attention to such a trivial matter, but absurd also, for the rifle hammer could not be thought of as doing wrong, nor could it be punished. And he expressed surprise that white men would use such language.

BECAUSE of the recent suggestion of ham—a small cottage ham—as a supper dish for summer which we gave recently over the radio, and because of the great number of recipes that have gone forward to our friends both of our radio hour and our column, I am going to plan not one but two menus today, one that will give a recipe for spring lamb that will appeal to many of us, and one menu to include ham, which I suspect a good many of us have on hand at this time. of ham—a small cottage ham—as supper dish for summer which we gave recently over the radio, and because of the great number of recipes that have gone forward to our friends both of our radio hour and our column, I am going to plan not one but two menus today, one that will give a recipe for spring lamb that will appeal to many of us, and one menu to include ham, which I suspect a good many of us have on hand at this time. We disposed of our requested recipes the other day—to our glory and gratification—but other requests have, of course, by this time red the studio. There are some that we shall add to the near future, but I do wish to say to our friends that now, as never before, are we faced here at the studio with a volume of mail, and that we are seldom able to answer "at once" any requests that come to us. The letters ested to the course, that we are some time in turn given attention. It is true, of course, that we are sometimes inclined to sidestep this policy when it is a matter constituting an emergency—but on the whole it is necessary—as doubtless we all realize—to take up all matters in their respective turn.

For this menu we shall need in the main a recipe for the lamb fillets, and we have planned this menu with an eye to the situation encountered in the meat markets at this time. Spring lamb is high, and yet we wish to enjoy its pleasure while it is a delicacy. By using the fore quarter of the animal rather than the leg, which being more in demand brings a higher price, we can have spring lamb for as little as we pay for our usual cuts of beef. The meat from the plate may be used for these lamb fillets, or any cut from the fore quarter of the animal. The plate cuts and their kin are far cheaper, we will remember, than the chops and legs of the animal. Now for the recipe for the fillets.

La b Fillets Sauteed.

Lan b Fillets Sauteed.

I move the bones from two and a half pound piece of lamb and cut the the meat into narrow pieces from about three quarters of an inch to an inch in hickness. With a broad bladed instrument of some order, flatten these pieces somewhat and then arrange them on a plate in a manner to facilitate covering them with a dressing made of vinegar and oil (equal parts), a small white onion either grated or ground and a bit of parsely chopped very fine, and, of course, the necessary salt and pepper. Pour this dressing over the lamb and allow it of the proving sautee the pieces in just sufficient butter to prevent their sticking to the hot frying pan into which they are dropped.

For this menu we shall require the ham, and possibly the s. ad recipes. This saled that we have suggested is as a matter of fact, one of the very few that gives all that we should have by way of green for a meal. It can take the place, with our meat, of all the usual foods incidental to a meal. We may do without potato or any hot vegetable and serve with our meat (which, in this case, has a cream sauce), just this salad, and have a satisfactory and well-proportioned repast.

Creamed Ham on Toast.

Dice at least ne cup of cold boiled ham and set saide. Place one table-spoon of butter in frying pan and allow it to melt. Add to this butter one lablespoon of flour, a forth teaspoon of alt and a few grains of pepper. Rub the flour into the melted butter and do not place the pan over the fire until these two ingredients are very smooth and sufficient milk has been added to prevent the flour making a hard paste. Gradually add milk until a whole cup her been used and then, stirring constantly, cook over a slow flame until the sauce thickens. Add the ham to the sauce thickens, add the ham to the sauce and add one hard cooked egg that has been forced through a sieve. Heat thoroughly. Serve on toasted squares of bread from which the crusts have been removed. Here, while we are about it, is the salad.

this whole mixture is thoroughly chilled it is to be heaped on a hed of crisp

We have here a request for the carrot marmalade that we gave some time last August. May I suggest that, unless this reader wishes to make just a small amount for immediate consumption, carrots are not now at their lowtion, carrots are not now at their low-est price. They are good, of course, and we use them constantly for a vegetable, but they will be much cheaper later on when they mature here in our own locality, and if this preserving is to be an investment in the future, wait and invest in July and August, when the carrots will be better than they are now and likewise cheaper.

Grate enough peel from an orange and lemon to make a teaspoon (of the two mixed) when measured. Then extract the juice from the oranges and lemons and mix all together and cook until clear and thick, stirring frequently to prevent scorching.
(Note—We found, in testing this recipe here at the studio, that this amount of sugar made a very sweet marmalade. The sugar may be reduced slightly, or the lemon juice added to. The sugar, however, may be reduced without danger and this seems to me the preferable alteration.

Concerning Beaded Bags

NOW there are beaded bags and beaded bags, as every one knows, but not all of them are French steel beaded—with steel beaded—with stunning engrav-ed frames and exquisite silk linings—and not all of these are as remarkable in value as those at Jelleff's.

So, if you are planning to give some girl a graduation gift, by all means make it a French beaded from Jelleff's. She'll adore it and they're priced so attractively at $9.50 and $12.50.

The boy stood on the burning deck whence all but him had fied, and in his hand he held a check which absorbingly he read. His memory had failed again, for he'd forgotten all his mother's voice in cautioning strain had told him in the hall. When suddenly the flames did blow and warmed him from the rear and feeling of their goodly glow his memory was quite clear. "Take this check to Griffith's shop and have them fill it in for enough to fill up to the top our trusty old coal bin." His mother's words rang in his ears, as he leaped ashore unharmed. He'll remember Griffith through the years each time that he is warmed.

The balloon tire with heavy, flat tread design is obviously stiffer and rides harder. The excess rubber, placed for appearance at the edges of the tread, is not only wasted but produces hinging action causing ply separation and "shoulder breaks."

The Final Blow.

HRISTINE never forgot her first evening after she had left her husband's house.

The bables were bathed and fed and but to bed before she had time for the explanation which her parents were awaiting. When she came down stairs having tucked Junior and Louise in for the night, the maid-of-all-work was tust putting dinner on the table.

Mrs. Farr whispered to Christine: "Daddy's just come in and he's very lired. Let's have dinner before we mention this distressing affair."

Mr. Farr, gray of hair, gray of face greeted his daughter with mild interest True, she had rarely dined at home since her marriage, being too thoroughly concerned with her own menage, but he did not suspect the presence of the children upstairs.

When a wail from Junior sent Christine: "Because, mother, Harvey was his days—the finding of the letter from another woman, the discovery that "She's left him!" announced Mrs. and dissolved in tears.

When Christine came down stars again, her parents were in the living toom. Her father cleared his throat and said sternly:

"What is this I hear, Christine? Your mother tells me that you and Harvey have quarreled."

"No, indeed; that's just the trouble!" sniffed her mother. "I call it hardly decent—and you a married woman. I never approved of that three-connered friendsh" especially after you were married to Harvey. I'm sure people must have talked."

"Not just quarreled, dad." Christine seated herself beside him and laid one small hand on his. appealingly. "I have left Harvey forever. I couldn't femain under the same roof with him any longer and keep my self-respect. Figure and keep my self-respect. The said her mother loftly. "But this discussion is useless, anyway. was among the well-to-do.

Studying more closely, they came to the conclusion that rheumatism was not caused by poverty, but by something associated with or incidental to poverty. One of these causes was clothing. Poor children who were very thinly clad were especially prone to have rheumatism. Children who wore warm clothes were likely to escape. Exposure to cold was another factor which contributed to rheumatism. Lack of maternal care was another contributing cause.

WHY DO CHILDREN HAVE RHEUMATISM?

The British research council has has been trying to discover why children have rheumatism and incidentally, what can be done to pretent it. One conclusion that they came to was that poverty contributed somehow or other to rheumatism.

In a group of about 1,000 families it was found that rheumatism was about 20 times as prevalent among those poor enough to use charity hospitals as it was among the well-to-do.

thinly clad were especially prone to have rheumatism. Children who wore warm clothes were likely to escape. Exposure to cold was another factor which contributed to rheumatism. Lack of maternal care was another contributing cause.

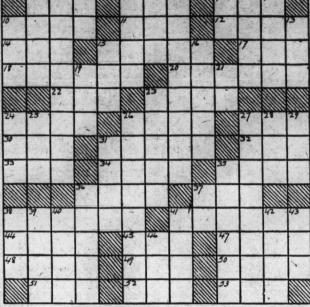

The study did not indicate that inheritance was a factor. There was more likely to be multiple cases of rheumatism in a family among brothers and sisters or among cousins, parents, uncles and aunts. It was likely to prevail horizontally rather than vertically in the families studed.

The study seemed to indicate that neither rheumatism nor a tendency to the disease was inherited.

A careful study was made to find the answer to the question: "Is rheumatism contagious?" The commission found no evidence that it is.

If, then, rheumatism is not contagious?" The commission found no evidence that it is.

If, then, rheumatism is not contagious? The emitted why are there multiple cases in families? The answer is that the same environmental conditions surround the several members of the family, and that several are likely to succumb.

You know little about business; probably he and this Hayes fellow fixed everything up satisfactorily between them. You may have jumped at conclusions. As for the letter from the woman—well, women sometimes write foolishly and recklessly. There was probably nothing back of it at all, except a silly woman's desire to dramatize herself on paper. Don't leap without looking, my child."

Christine leaned forward in her chair. Her face was very white. She felt cold to the tips of her fingers. "You mean," she faltered, "you mean you don't want me at home?" —you don't want me at home?" "I want you—but I can't afford you," was the answer.

And who, in an effort to do some necessary shopping during a hectic noon hour must gulp down a sandwich and another cup of coffee. This girl complains of being so tired at night that she doesn't feel like reading or taking exercise and asks would I please suggest practical ways and means to beauty for her.

My correspondent, who, for her own excellent reasons perhaps, did not sign her name, will not like this article. For I must start by telling her she lacks that first essential to brains, beauty and charm—common sense. And I must ask her a few questions.

food, it is distinctly bad manners!

And what does our subject do with her hours between dinner and bedtime! I venture to say that at least two nights a week she can be found in a stuffy auditorium, viewing a movie. Surely one does not require much energy to take a pleasant walk. To join a gymnasium class, if one lacks stick-to-litiveness enough to exercise alone, is real fun and, therefore, beneficial in two ways—it tones the body and the disposition.

I am sure my correspondent was not describing her usual day; but if she was, she deserves this letter in its entirety. There is no such thing as not having time for a necessity—and health is no luxury. Try to get along without it! Or rather, please don't.

Dear Helen: This is the season of seasons to make use of odd pieces of material, for never has the contrasting seasons to make use of odd pieces of material, for never has the contrasting wrap been more important. But although the color is charming, Vogue feels that chiffon velvet is rather too formal a material for a sports jacket, and suggests that you combine it with crepe de chine in the same shade to make the three-quarters coat we have sketched.

This pattern requires no more material than a jacket and holds no pitfalls for the dressmaker. The straight three-quarters coat is very smart this season, and is shown in every sort of material for wear over anything from a bathing suit to a dance dress! If you make one from your velvet you can wear it either with your afternoon frocks in harmonizing colors, or as an evening wrap. We have sketched it with chiffon printed in rose and black a big black straw hat and patent leather sandals. There are innumerable variations that you can work outgerogettes, crepes and crepe de chines in clear, light shades, dance frocks of chiffon or lace and, if your winter evening wrap is too heavy for summer, this coat is exactly what you need to take its place.

It must be very harassing to start the day with a sense of being rushed; and those few minutes, gained by rising earlier, will give you time for breakfast, time to examine whether your lip rouge is on straight and to relax enough mentally to observe that nature is doing beautiful things these mornings.

And since from some unknown source comes the impression that we (I speak collectively), the beautity writers, are less weighted with work than the stenographer world, I can reply, "You are far wrong." It would be a delightful experience for me to feel when leave my office that all business concerns are left behind me locked in my deak, as can the majority of stenographers.

"From a bond redemption standpoint, the most important development of the week just ended was the flotation of $60,000,000 new 5 per cent bonds of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., "said the banker." as this is to be followed by the retirement of the funded indebtedness incurred at the time of the reorganization of that company." The Goodyear bonds to be retired consist of approximately $20,000,000 first mortgage 8 and $15,000,000 deberture 8s.

Other large bond issues of the week will be devoted partly to retunding, and calls for the retirement of old issues may be looked for within a short time.

The bonds called for redemption in May are divided into the following classifications:

HERMAN LUDWIG VON HELM-HOLTZ showed the every musical tone takes its quality from the character of its overtones. Yet the human ear cannot differentiate the delicate overtones of musical sound.

The same principle applies in securities. Our First Mortgage Notes take their high factor of safety from the many additional factors of expert service entailed in each transaction. Yet the investor may never realize the many carful steps necessary before he can purchase these sound securities.

The fact that no Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company investor has ever suffered loss in fifty-eight years bears evidence to the high factor of safety of the offerings of this time-tested house. The same service is here awaiting you.

FREELY AMONG STOCKS

Advance in Both Rail and Industrial Lists Goes On Unchecked.

MONEY RATE STIFFENS

Special to The Washington Post. New York, May 23.—Although some-what less buoyant and at times appearing a bit reactionary, stocks maintained their strength today in continued active trading on the New York Stock active trading on the New York Stock Exchange, notwithstanding an increase of one-half of 1 per cent in the rate for call money. Many active issues reached higher levels and net gains ranging up to 7 points were freely scattered through the list at the close, although in most instances the improvement amounted to 3 points or less. The turnover again was in excess of 1,225,000 shares.

turnover again was in excess of 1,225,000 shares.

Nothing, it appeared, could check the progress of standard dividend paying issues and of the shares of those companies, railroad and industrial, which have bright prospects for the holders of their securities. The principal features continued to be the low priced railroad shares, although Bangor & Aroostook common, closing just under a new top, established in midseason, registered the maximum gain of the seasion, around 7 points.

Western Maryland, New Haven and Chicago Great Western were moved forward with enthusiasm and there was brisk demand again in the higher priced sections of the carrier list for Pere Marquette, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and some more.

Trading broadened considerably in Pittsburgh & West Virginia and some more.

Trading broadened considerably in the forenoon, taking in many issues which for a time had been comparatively neglected, but on the other hand several of those shares which had been the most active last week, and which had made the largest gains in that period, were subjected to some profit taking.

For the unusually strong opening, in which several of the rails, and, among the industrials, International Nickel, were carried into new high ground for all time, large buying orders accumulated over the week-end were responsible.

United States Steel common was car-wille.

United States Steel common was carried up to within a fraction of its highest level for the year, but Lubsequently backed down to close net unchanged, and the new stock, the Worthington Pump issues, Reynolds Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Lambert Co. and Mack Trucks were among the active industrials, which, in the course of the day, registered new tops. Brooklyn Union Gas, A. M. Myers and Detroit Edison were others conspicuously strong, and among the issues which had lain dormant for some time and which were made active today were Wright Aeronautical and Marine preferred. The former, of course, responded to the world-wide advertising the company's product is receiving in connection with Capt. Lindbergh's nonstop flight from New York to Paris. The stock, however, met with considerable offerings on the furtherance of the rise inaugurated Saturday, and after getting up to 39 it dropped more than 3½ points to close but 1 point net higher. Marine preferred probably was influenced by the buoyancy of the shipping shares on the London mart.

A sharp rally in sterling, ascribed to cessation of French selling pressure, was the chief incident of the day in foreign exchange dealings. Other European rates were steady, aside from pepean rates were steady, aside from pe-

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 23 (By A. P.).—Wheat advanced today at a rapid rate, influenced by Canadian reports that all hope of further seeding of wheat had been abandoned in some sections. Current estimates were that, owing to excessive rain, the Canadian seeded area is only ranging at present from 50 per cent minimum to 60 per cent maximum. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1½ to 2½ cents get up; oats at ¼ to ½ cent gaid, and proof of the control of the co hard winter showing most weakness.

A forecast of clearing weather in Canada led to determined selling at tims in the wheat market. It was faiso pointed out that wheat had risen more than 13 cents a bushel in about a month, that harvesting in Southwest would travel northward rapidly and that importing countries were likely ofto reduce their demands during the past few weeks. An increase of the amount of wheat on ocean passage was announced, making the total 75.632.000 bushels, against 40.592.000 bushels a year ago. Meanwhile, however, the United States visible supply total decreased 1,480,000 bushels, and official figures indicated that wheat arrivals in Europe were quickly going to consumers.

Rainy weather gave strength to corn and oats, despite much selling to realize profits on corn. The corn visible supply decreased 1,735.000 bushels.

Provisions went lower on account of a setback in hog values.

TWO YANKEE HOME RUNS FUTILE AS NATS WIN, 3-2 800 Entry List In Open Golf Tourney

Ranking Pros of U. S. to Compete in Qualifying Rounds.

Al Watrous Ineligible Because of Technicality in Entry.

N EW YORK, May 23 (By A. P.).—A record-breaking entry of 800 or more golfers, including virtually every ranking professional in the country, will compete in the sectional qualitying championship at Oakmont June 14-16. It was disclosed today by the United States Golf Association. ing rounds for the national

The entries close tonight at mid-light and although no official coun night and although no official count was available it was estimated they would exceed by more than 100 the record list of 694, established last year.

Bill Mehlhorn, MacDonald Smith and George Von Eim were among the last to enter in an eleventh-hour rush that swamped officials. Al Watrous, a member of America's Ryder Cup team that meets Great Britain in the international matches, was disqualified from entering because of a technicality in falling to submit an officially attested score card. His entry was received too late for this mistake to be rectified.

Bobby Jones, defending champion, and the first international low scorers in last year's championship, all have filed entries and are exempt from qualifying. There will be only 111 places open to those who are competing in the sectional qualifying rounds. Of the regulation 150 places on the list, 31 are reserved for last year's low scorers and 8 more are held open for the British Ryder Cup team.

The U. S. G. A., however, may declare one place flexible to favor one or more of the smaller qualifying districts, it was learned tonight.

The sectional qualifying rounds, 36 holes of medal play, will be held June 5 in the following 17 districts: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, Dallas, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle. The number of qualifiers for each district will be determined by the championship committee in a few days.

Jess Sweetser, British amateur champlon, who had limited his competition at home this year because of recent recovery from a long illness, did not enter.

TODAY'S GAMES.

Schneider will probably start on the mound for Western, but Coach Ahearn will call on E. Bates if Schneider falters, as he did in the Business game. Bates looked mighty impressive out there in the last inning of that game.

While Tech has won one game and lost one game it may be just the team to upset the dope if upsetting is to 12 done. The Manual Trainers defeated Business, 12 to 7, but lost a hard-fought, 12-inning game to Eastern, 9 to 6.

Officials at Eastern announced yesterday that the game today and the Eastern-Business game, scheduled for Friday, but which may be played Thursday or Saturday, would determine whether the Eastern-Western game is to be replayed. If Tech defeats Western, Eastern will demand the game be replayed, and should Western and Eastern both win their next game, Western will be asked to again play Eastern.

American Net Stars

Americans Lose in Victory for Former Play for Amateur Will Cause Triple Tie in Series. Title at Hoylake.

Phys. Are an experience of the dozen American entrants survived the first round of the British amateur golf championship, played today over the wind-swept course of the Royal Liverpool Club. WESTERN HIGH SCHOOL plays its final scheduled game of the school series today, meeting in Tech High School a team which may cause considerable trouble.

Tech has a team that is capable of playing, brilliant baseball when it is right, and Coach Gienn has instilled a fighting pirit into his aggregation. In Ensor and Young he has two pitchers who have turned in some outstanding performances this year. Berger, Demarest and Gorman are hitting over 400 and Fales, Drissell and Sorrell are dangerous in the pinch.

Frank C. Newton, of Brookline, Mass. Frank C. Newton, of Brookline, Mass., interrupted a world tour to beat one of Great Britain's longest hitters, Lieut. Col. A. W. Tate, of the Royal and Ancient Club, two up. An American "dark horse" appeared in the youthful G. H. Haley, of New York, former Williams College star, who eliminated H. A. Kay, of Wilmslo, by the same margin. Harry Brower, an American resident of Paris; Douglas Grant, formerly of San Francisco and now living in London, and Joshua Crane, of Brookline, all continued into the second round, the latter by default. Brower defeated H. L. Holden, of Bowden, one up, and Grant put out W. M. W. Sutton, of Willesley Park, 3 and 2.

Only one casualty appeared in the ranking British list. Although the former champions, Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered, came through their first tests easily, Robert Harris, Scottish star, lost at the nine-teenth hole to Robert Cant, a fellow Scott, unknown outside the hoot factory where he works in his native village of Carnoustie.

Another unknown, Norman Sutton, a young railroad worker from the Westchester Artisans Club, robbed Harold Hilton of his hundredth victory in British amateur play covering a period of 25 years. The veteran had turned in 99 wins, but was stopped by Sutton. Haley showed stout golfing courage in winning from Kay after being two down at the turn and three behind at the thirteenth. He won when he "got mad" at his loose play and tightened up to finish with three fours. If Haley beats F. Williamson, of Carlisle, tomorrow, he probably will encounter

St. John's Nine Wins From Eastern, 5 to 0

St. John's baseball team defeated Eastern High School yesterday in a 7-inning practice game, 5 to 0.
St. John's scored four runs in the first frame and one in the second. Hudson, second baseman, knocked a homerun with a man on base in the first inning.

Resting for Tourney

of Game for Play at Wimbledon.

Suzanne; Fears Miss Godfree.

L ONDON, May 23 (By A. P.).—Helen Wills, here for an invasion of England's tennis courts, devoted her first day in London to complete relaxation and a peep here and there at the sights of the town.

She was pleased to encounter an occasional acquaintance but was inclined to keep away from tennis subjects. She said she had no intention of even looking at a racquet during the day.

"I'm just having a little walk around town, taking a real rest, she told a questioner. "Tomorrow I am going to practice a little. It is somewhat difficult, however, for me to fix up practice games in London immediately I arrive, because I don't know many people over here whom I can ring up offnand and ask to play me."

The former American champion seems in fine fettle, and her excellent condition as well as tried ability give the experts the impression that she has a /strong chance of winning the woman's singles championship at Wimbledon.

"I have never felt so fit in my life," she said today, "and if I fall now, it will be because a better player has beaten me. I have not played tennis seriously since my illness. However, I tried in two tournaments at home, but had not given myself enough time to recuperate."

Within a week after the Wimbledon tournament, which opens. June 20

Within a week after the Wimbledon tournament, which opens June 20, si.e will return to New York. She added that she would play only in the singles and women's doubles at Wimbledon, as she thought that going in for the mixed doubles would be overdoing it.

She expressed the opinion that there would be a close fight for the women's singles, with Kitty McKane Godfree as probably her strongest opponent, and added:

"It is a pity that Suzanne Lenglen will not be there, for I should like to meet her again."

Maple Heights Meet Canceled by Officials

Cleveland, Ohio, May 23 (By A. P.) The management of the Ohio State 7 Jockey Club announced late today that the spring meeting at Maple Heights 1 track here, scheduled for May 28 to June 14 has been cancelled.

The action followed a recent announcement of Sheriff Edward Hanratty that no betting on horse races would be permitted in Cuyahoga county. The announcement said the management of the club did not wish to be involved "in a fight between various factions," and that the suspension of the schedule had been decided upon to that end.

to that end.

From a racing standpoint, the meeting would have been the best ever held at Maple Heights, the announcement declared. The Ohio State Derby, with $10,000 added, which was to have been run on the opening day, had drawn 27 entries, including ten horses that had been entered in the Kentucky Derby.

American Star at Top Champ Rates Gob "as Good a Fighter" as He Has Seen.

Would Like to Meet Refuses to Pick Win ner in Sharkey-Dempsey Clash.

EW YORK, May 23 (By A. P.)— Jack Sharkey is "as good a fighter" as Gene Tunney ever has seen in the heavyweight champion said today.
"Sharkey is fast, clever—a hitter.
He's just the type you can not lay back against, because he'il outpoint you. If you try to outpoint him, he's liable to knock you out. I consider him the outstanding challenger for my title."
Tunney thought Sharkey's previous victories over Maloney might have had a psychological effect on the big Irishman in their recent battle.
"Jim might not have realized the effect of Sharkey's confident attitude."
Gene explained. "But in his subconscious mind possibly was the thought that Sharkey was the better man, that he would win. There could be but one result under those conditions."
"No one ever will have a psycho-

"No one ever will have a psychological superiority over Sharkey," Gene continued. "Jac" doesn't stop to reason why he excels an opponent. His confident attitude is not a result of careful analysis. He just knows he's the better man."

The heavyweight king refused to pick the winner of the proposed match between the former gob and Dempsey, scheduled for the Yankee stadium here drew, however, was all in Sharkey's favor.

"Styles of the two men differ widely," he said. "Sharkey is much smarter and stalks his man cleverly, while Dempsey rushes in, smashing with both hands. Of course, Sharkey is not as heavy a hitter as Dempsey. "Perhaps I should return Dempsey's compliment by picking Sharkey to beat him if they mect." Gene concluded with a smile. "You know he picked Gibbons to beat me two years ago."

London, May 23 (By A. P.).—Cecil Leitch has made a rapid recovery from the effects of last week's lightning shock which she suffered while watching the British women's open golf championship play at Newcastle, County Down, Ireland.

She competed today, in company with several other British international players, in the ladies' open tournament at the Royal Portrush Club, and indicated her return to form by leading the field with an 84.

Helen Wills Jack Sharkey Walter Johnson Will Pitch Against Baltimore Today

Nat Mound Ace to Test Mending Leg Before Facing Yankees This Week-Tooth Treatments May Help Coveleskie.

By FRANK H. YOUNG. By Frank H. Young.

Y tonight Washington fans should have concrete information as to whether or not Walter Johnson's broken-leg handicap is a thing of the past and the question as to whether he is now ready to come back to the races will be answered, as the Old Master is slated for a tryout in the exhibition game to be played against the Orioles in Baltimore this afternoon.

Present plans call for him to pitch only five innings, so that he will be available against the Yankees in one of the games of the double-headers scheduled in New York Friday and Saturday.

scheduled in New York Friday and Sat-urday.

As has been repeatedly stated of late, Johnson's arm seems to be functioning in great shape, although he has not tested it in actual competition, the big question being whether his leg will stand the necessary running and field-ing. There is no sentiment in base-ball, and Walter must pass through some real tests—as opponents are sure to do a lot of bunting—before he can be credited with a comeback.

For the balance of this week the Washington club will transfer its headquarters to Gotham. Tomorrow's exhibition will be played with the "Skeeters" at Jersey City, and not at Newark, as was previously appropried.

After this afternoon's game the Harrismen will continue on to New York, Jumping over to Jersey City in the morning and returning at night. The off day will be spent in the big town. Pitchers Crowder, Marberry, Braxton and Murray will pass up the Baltimore trip, but will go direct to New York this afternoon.

Stanley Coveleskie, veteran spit-bal hurier, may fool some of those who are now singing his "swan song" as a big leaguer. He rejoined the Nationals yes-terday, reporting that physicians at his home in Shamokin had discovered sev-eral abcessed teeth which, they state, have been poisoning his entire system.

These infected molars are held responsible for the numerous pains and aches which have prevented him from pitching effectively and the doctors believe that, with them out, "Covey" will have no more troubles. He will start taking treatments here today and hopes to be able to begin practice in an effort to regain his pitching form by the time the Nats return from their New York invasion.

There are two types of Babe Ruth fans—those who come out to cheer him and others who like to jeer him. Both had their innings yesterday. In the first frame, the King of Clout looked the part when he crashed out his eleventh homer of the season. In the next inning, with two mates on the paths. Thurston fanned the Bambino. Both happenings drew about the same amount of applause.

Manager Harris is greatly pleased with "Bump" Hadley's showing in his recent start against the Tigers. For five innings he looked like a fine pitcher. Then he was the victim of a couple of bad breaks, became unsteady and had to be yanked. He is due for another trial shortly.

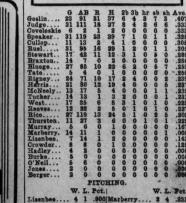

Scout Joe Engel is back in town and much pleased with his discovery of Paul (Buddy) Dear, the Virginia Polytech shortstop, who recently signed a Washington contract. According to the "Boy Scout," his latest find, who will join the team as soon as he receives his college diploma, is a flash afield, a good base runner and a hard hitter.

The Nats came within two inches of knotting the count at two-all in the third inning yesterday when, with one run over and Thurston on second, Umpire Nailin called Harris' short looper to right a foul. From the stands, it looked as though the Nat pilot had cracked out a timely two-baser. He then singled, but a great peg by Durst caught the Nat pitcher at the plate.

Pinch Hitters Fanned by Marberry

Winning Run Forced In by Thomas After Koenig's Error.

Ruth and Gehrig Hit for Circuit; Goslin Stars Afield.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH,

Sports Editor, The Post.

The New York Yankees are an impulsive crew. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig conducted two baseballs right out of the premises in the first inning of yesterday's game, and the Yankees' attack had been spent. The Washington players bided their time until along about the seventh inning when they scored two runs unassisted by any home-run wallops, and won the ball game, 3 to 2.

All the pinch hitters and pinch runners that Manager Miller Huggins could muster could not beat Washington, and in a strategical tiff with Manager Harris. Manager Huggins scored a notable defeat. As the game wore on and threatening clouds which had enveloped the stadium from the start of the game grew ominously black, Huggins and the rest of the Yankees tried mightily to retrieve a run and tie the score.

Manager Harris gambled on his re-moval of Pitcher Thurston in the sev-enth inning to allow Tucker to bat with the bases full, and when Thomas walked Tucker, the decisive run walked over the plate in the company of Stew-art, who had been resting on third base.

Braxton started to pitch the next inning and disposed of two batters, but Babe Ruth was on third base as a result of his two-base hit and infield out.
When Huggins sent Paschal in to bat for Durs', Harris sent Marberry in to pitch for Braxton. Huggins recalled Paschal and replaced him with Morehart. Marberry struck Morehart out.
Marberry's speed was blinding yeaterday. He also pitched the ninth inning. Lazzeri popped to Rigney. Dugan sliced a sharp double to center field

Sepoy Second In Hyde Park Handicap

Steeplechase Is Run in a Blinding Rain Storm.

Miss Boyd, I Hope So, Coupled, First and Third in Opener.

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, New York, May 23.—Dangerous, 5-year-old son of Negofol-Fair Atlanta, which races in the interests of the Rose-dale Stable, won the Hyde Park Handicap, the programmed feature of this afternoon's card at Belmont Park. L. H. Rowe's Sepoy was second and the B. B. Stable's Atwater third.
Dangerous found the track to his liking and after being restrained off the early pace, disposed of the early leaders in the last eighth and won well in hand. Sepoy forced the pace for a quarter of a mile and then gave way to Atwater. The latter's command was shortlived as Dangerous made his run when the first two began to tire.

A torrential downpour which set in immediately after the running of the first race left the track a veritable quagmire. The steeple-chase was run in a blinding storm and it was almost next to impos-sible to discern the contestants on the backstretch and turns.

Timmerman's Miss Boyd and I Hope So. Miss Boyd proved the fleeter of the pair, winning by two lengths from Little Sam, while I Hope So was third.

Utilities Issues Lead Limited Demand; Rails Generally Steady.

FOREIGN LIST IRREGULAR

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT BOY

New York, May 23 (By the Associated ress).—Prices held firm in the bond market today, although the volume of full-day session. Prospects for con-inued easy money conditions, despite $22,000,000 denoit in reserve, and calling today of about $20,000,000 oans, continued to supply a solid foundation for bond quotations.

Public utilities were in the forefront of the day's limited demand, Brooklyn Urion Gas 5½s touching another new high record and International Telephone & Telegraph 5½s reaching a new top of 112½ before falling back for a fractional net loss.

Railroad issues, on the whole, displayed a firm undertone, Chicago & Eastern Hilinois Se, duplicating their year's high, while Peoria & Eastern income 4s and Erie D 4s registered gains of a point or so. Cheaspeake Corporation 5s were under selling pressure, but the loss was elight.

Davison Chemical 6½s, which are to be retired shortly, were bought around their previous top, but other industrial mortgages received little attention.

The foreign group was irregular. Rhinelbe Union 7s, with warrants, declined more than a point to 116½, a new minimum for the year, and other French issues showed evidences of profit-taking.

Fourth Liberty 4½s changed hands to the extent of more than 8750,000, but the price underwent practically no change. Other Federal government issues were quiet and steady.

Later in the discussion, when a delegats demanded that Mrs. Swanton name those teachers "she considered so vile," Mrs. Swanton declared she had been misunderstood, and had not attacked the character of teachers.

"My point is that the work is too strenuous for a woman who has household duties also," she said. "And it is demoralizing to men to have wives they are not willing to support."

Mrs. Jennie O. Berliner, of the Woman's Bar Association, said that while she had been forced to work to support her family, she had a son with a Ph. D. degree and a daughter she is sending to medical school. This, she said, is adequate illustration that a woman can both teach and rear a family.

Special to The Washington Post.

Seaford, Del., May 23.—A funeral procession starting off for the cemetery without the corpse occurred yesterday at the funeral of Harland Pusey at the home of Mrs. Emma J. Gordy on the Seaford-Laurel State highway. There were about 200 mourners present The Rev. J. H. Uheebee, pastor of Bethl M. E. Church, conductd the services and the procession started for Laurel Hill Cemetery, 3 miles away, headed by the funeral car of Harley Riggin, of Laurel.

The procession had gone about a mile when some of the mourners, left at the home discovered the casket containing the corpse had been forgotten. A State highway trooper was sent on his motorcycle to head off the procession. Reaching the funeral director he informed him that he did not have the corpse in the hearse.

Riggin, astomished, as were the mourners, said he failed to understand how the corpse could bave been forgotten. He found all the floral tributes in his hearse, but the corpse missing. A return trip was made to coordinate the work.

Senators Want Action on Private Application Delayed Until Winter.

Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals Held Obstacles to Victory.

The application of the Potomac River Corporation for permission to develop the Great Palls water power project again will throw this matter before Congress, it was made known yester-day, but it is considered unlikely that anything definite will be done.

Senators Norris, of Nebraska; Johnson, of California; Dill, of Washington, and Blaine, of Wisconsin, have written the Federal Power Commission asking that action be withheld on the Potomac corporation's application until Congress meets. This opposition, it is believed, will serve to hold up the mat-ter, although the commission has au-taority to act definitely within the next ix or eight weeks. The four senators are advocates of government ownership of water power projects, and Senator Norris for the past several years has blocked any at-past several years has blocked any attempt at private operation of Great Falls.

While it is known that he plans to lead a fight at the next session for government operation of the Nation's water power resources, there was a serious doubt in well-informed circles yesterday that there is the slightest likelihood of his being successful, in so far as Great Falls is concerned.

First, some disposition must be made of Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam, it is pointed out, and while supporters of these two projects are hopeful that they can both be disposed of at the next session, there is a strong belief that Congress would not then be in the mood to dispose also of Great Falls.

have had the report of Col. Langfitt. He spent $620,000 of public funds in making an investigation, and upon that investigation he made a very comprehensive report to Congress. The last investigation was made by Maj. Tyler. It was even more full and complete than the Langfitt report.

"The Senate has three times passed a bill for the development of power at Great Falls. The last one was a development in accordance with the report of Maj. Tyler. At one time—I think it was the second time it passed the Senate—it was in the form of an amendment to an appropriation bill. The conferees compromised by providing that another investigation should be made and that the project should be made that Congress has been contemplating for some time the passage of a law which would provide for the development of hydroelectric energy at Great Falls. The Tyler report contains, in addition to the power dam, several storage dams and was very complete in every way. After this report had been made the Senate again passed the bill, and while the House committee had hearings and did considerable work on it no final action was had.

"It would seem to be apparent that the Federal Power Commission should await final action of Congress before granting a lease to any private corporation to construct this project. Under these circumstances it appears to me that it is only necessary to call your attention to the action of Congress heroe granting a lease to any private corporation to ensert into any lease until Congress has been given more time to finally pass upon the subject. It will be noted that each time the matter has come before the Senate in the project to the House, to finally develop this power at Great Falls by governmental action.
